AND THIS IS NO BLARNEY

In Celebration of St. Patrick's Day, March 17, her's a bit of blarney that may well be true.

The original Blarney was an Irish chieftain who proved that you can still win even when you lose. When the castle of Blarney was besieged by the English, the lord of the manor concluded an armistice with the English commander. According to reliable Blarney-Blabbers, he promised to surrender to an English garrison in Cork on a certain date.

The Englishman waited politely for the terms of the armistice to be filled - and waited - and waited. The Lord of Blarney held him off with promises and flattery, until the commander became the laughingstock of the court of England.

And the name "Blarney" ironically took its place in the English language, as a synonym for-sweet talk.

CORRECTION: Volume XVI, Number 3, August 1979, Page 144. "I wish to correct the following mistake that I have recorded, 'one unmarked adult grave, Rev. Aurelius Cox.' I was given the wrong information. This is not Aurelius Cox in "Four Centuries on the Pascagoula" by Cyril E. Cain, page 138, Vol. 2, there is recorded Aurelius Cox and wife Mildred Alexander Cox buried in Alexander Cemetery, Stone County, Mississippi."

STYRON FAMILY
F719

Col. James A. Styron, circa 1915.

The Styron family was in this country at the time of the American Revolution. My grandfather, "Col. James A. Styron was born in Marion, Alabama, January 14, 1847. He was educated at the University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, which was at that time a military academy. While a very young cadet there, the University students were called to take protective action with the Confederate Army. At the close of the Civil War he returned to the University for a short time, and though he soon left to enter business and to be married, the University in later years conferred upon him the degree of Bachelor of Arts."

He and his wife, Annie H. Styron, had four sons, James Arthur, born January 24, 1870; Harry Tayloe, born October 23, 1871; Walter Ridgeway born August 6, 1873; and Charles Gunn, born January 10, 1879.

"Col. Styron came to Texas about 1880 and located in Cleburne. He became a member of the firm of C. Dickson and Company, in which he continued until his retirement from business because of failing health."

"Col. Styron had a never failing zest for life; he was always responsive, always ready for his friends, took an active part in the religious, political, civic, and social life of the town."

"At the time of his death he was secretary treasurer of the Cleburne Country Club; for many years an untiring warden of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Comforter, he having long acted as treasurer of the vestry of the Episcopal Church."

"Col. Styron's greatest interest outside his home and business lay in his military and fraternal life. His first activity in military affairs in Texas was as Commander of the Cleburne Light Guards, composed of the best young men of the city, in which organization he had the active aid of Gen. Tracy Dickson, then a youth, whose crowning accomplishment lay in the assistance he gave in quelling a riot in Fort Worth in the early 1880's. As a member of the state militia, Col. Styron was made a lieutenant-colonel in the Second Texas Regiment during the Spanish-American War; it was some years later that he retired from the militia as brigadier-general." Excerpts taken from the Enterprise newspaper, Cleburne, Texas, Monday December 27, 1920. He died on December 26, 1920.

A widower, my grandfather married my grandmother, Esther Ann Butner on March 6, 1884. She was the daughter of John Christopher Butner and Permelia Ann Merrette Buttner and was born in Kentucky August 5, 1864 and died on January 16, 1942 in Cleburne. They had two children, an infant son, Edwin, who was born in 1885 and died in 1886; and my mother, Aileen, who was born on September 15, 1889 and died on March 1, 1975.

Aileen married my father, James M. Ragsdale, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Ragsdale, Sr. of Cleburne. They were married on November 16, 1910 in the Episcopal Church in Cleburne. They had three children, Alice Ann, James Styron Ragsdale and Kathrine Joanna.
